

Browning and Cripe announce plans to develop Indiana Business College Columbus, Ohio Campus

Architects + Engineers

Solutions by Design Since 1937

INDIANAPOLIS – Browning Investments, Cripe Architects + Engineers and Indiana Business College

announced today a partnership to develop a new campus in Columbus, Ohio. Groundbreaking for the new campus is scheduled for Spring 2009.

Browning

This new campus will be the 15th educational facility of Indiana Business College. The College as an institute of higher learning serves nearly 5,000 students through its 12 campuses within Indiana, in addition to an online division and The Chef's Academy.

According to Indiana Business College president Ken Konesco, "Indiana Business College was founded in 1902 and has been providing qualified graduates to the workforce for 106 years. As the educational needs of the Midwest continue to grow and expand, we see tremendous opportunity for our highly skilled graduates not only in Indiana, but Ohio as well. We are very excited about extending our organizational aim of 'We change lives, one student at a time®' beyond Indiana and into Ohio. Additionally, Indiana Business College is excited to partner with Browning and Cripe Architects + Engineers on this initiative."